NEW CODE OF LAWS RECOMMENDED-DIS

Attorney General Garland, in his report to ongress, devotes considerable attention to matters relating to the District of Columbia. In Brewster's report of 1884, and says: "Where Congress has failed to define or provide a punshment for what should be a crime in the Dis-Maryland, most of which existing prior to Febtorney General did, that in view of the facts above stated, there seems to be an imperative against the manner of selecting District juries, eral Brewster's report on the subject, he recom-mends, as did his predecessor, "that, in the interest of justice and as a matter of economy, forty-eight, that the time of service should be reduced to one month, that where a deficiency exists in the jury that deficiency should be supplied from the box, and that an improved system of drawing, selecting and summoning juries should be adopted without delay." He adopts the views contained in the Attorney General's report of 1884, in regard to special urors in the District. s," he says, "in many respects, a model institution, the building having been constructed Under existing arrangements the jail affairs are not under the entire charge of any one person, and it is, therefore, difficult to fix responsibility for its management. The Department of Justice examines and passes upon all bills for the expense of conducting it, including the cost of subsistence, fuel, medicines, and all supplies, as well as the payment of the salaries of officers and employes. But it has nothing whatever to do with the purchasing of these supplies, nor with the employment of the force engaged upon the premises; it acts simply as the paymaster, and settles bills already incurred.

To remedy this state of things, I recommend that the institution be placed under the control that the institution be placed under the control of some one authority or head, who shall not to its expenses, but who shall also be held responsible for the efficiency and conduct of its officers and employes. I believe that in this munity, as well as with a considerable saving to the government. Some one person or de-partment should have sole charge and be alone responsible for its entire management. As far as possible careful attention has been paid by this department to the expenses of the jail during the past year; the total, however, talling but very little below that of 1884."

In regard to the sets forth the necessity for increasing the capacity of the school. The present buildings are not large enough to accommodate the number secure than at the present; that reports to the tion touching railroad facilities in the city of Washington. Much controversy has arisen upon this subject, and the Commissioners of the District have been involved in a good deal of trouble in relation to it, and proceedings of a criminal nature have been threatened against them. They have deemed the metters of such fically in a communication, and I recommend that Congress, by legislation, remove these of erecting on the grounds adjoining the Department of Justice a proper building for the accommodation, in addition to the Department of Justice, of the Supreme Court and other proper courts and commissions of the United States. The necessity for quarters for the Supreme Court of the United States, other than those now occupied, is apparent; the present court-room is manifestly too small, and its location not sufficiently apart from the publicity.

Terry without protection in the face of an armed host, and asked that orders be given to Gen. McCook to insure tranquility. What was done was mere prudence. An order for the stationing of a company of soldiers in this city should have been made long ago."

Hurled Out of Their Beds.

A House Blown to Pieces by a Terrific Explosion of Natural gas. tion not sufficiently apart from the publicity and bustle attending the sessions of Congress. Accommodations should be provided for the court, not only commensurate with its high and volume of its work, the increasing growth of the bar, and the number of interested parties to causes and other spectators.

The site already belongs to the government, is of sufficient size, and convenient to most of Courts and commissions, having the dignity of, and acting in reality as, courts of the United States, are created from time to time as necesstates, are created from time to time as necessity calls for them. It seems fitting that these should be located in a proper government building with the Department of Justice and the Supreme Court, all convenient to each other and under one roof, and not, as now and other and under one roof, and not, as now and dations of his predecessor that authority be given the judges of the United States courts to entence prisoners convicted of first offenses to sentence prisoners convicted of first offenses to such reformatories or graded prisons as may be selected by the Attorney General. He urges the necessity of building a government peni-tentiary, where all persons convicted of United States offenses could be confined and employed in the manufacture of supplies exclusively for in the manufacture of supplies exclusively for the government, which work would assist in cessors at the time of their qualification all unfinished business of every kind; that the salaries of marshals be revised; that the compensation of the United States attorneys for New Mexico and Arizons be increased, and that the compensation of clerks of United States courts in California be reduced; that attorneys and marshals be required to make returns by fiscal instead of calendar years; that the accounts of chief supervisors of elections be taxed in open court under the inspection of the district attorney; that the penalty for the punishment of persons resisting officers be more severe, and that increased provisions be made for the protection of United States witnesses.

The report closes with a brief statement of the Union Pacific railway litigation, and says that a motion will be filed by the government in the Supreme Court in a few days to advance the appeals on the docket, so as to have a speedy determination of them.

with criminal libel, preferred by J. C. Coons, editor of the Wilkesbarre Newsdealer, came up in court here this morning for trial. The alleged libel consisted of a Washington dispatch to the Times, under date of May 20, 1885, in which it was stated that Coons was in Washington in the interest of his partner, 8. Bruce Coleman, who was a candidate for the Wilkesbarre postmastership, and that Coons had been proceeded for perjury and conspiracy in Laberne county and convicted. Mr. McClure, when called, testified that he was editor of the Times and Mr. Murray, who contributed the article, was one of his correspondents; that Coons had written him not to rake up old sores, and that he then gave instructions in the office not to deal harshly with Coons in the future. Counsel for the defense contented that as Coons was trying to hoist a man into public life it was no more than right that the appointing power and the public should be made aware of the character of the men who were backing the applicant. It was claimed that the article was a privileged communication, and that under the law its publication was justifiable. The case was not concluded.

I think it would be well to have a representative of this department on the board of trustees, and recommend therefore that the chief clerk of the Department of Justice be made ex officio a trustee."

LEGISLATION TOUCHING RAILROADS IN WASH-INGTON CITY.

"The attention of Congress is respectfully the steps leading to one certain point. The atsteps leading to one certain point. The at-tempted assassination of Marshal Collins brought affairs to a climax, and violence was so imminently threatened that many believed it ing how much longer it would be before the people would be roused to fury. Two days later the Herald deciared that the public mind later the Heraid declared that the public mind was wrought up to a pitch that would be dangerous in any other community. It then proceeded to describe Deputy Marshal Collins as a murderer, and as far as possible to further inflame the populace. Outside the Mormon press was quite as violent. bulged out by the explosion, quickly collapsed Immediately the fragments of the structure took fire, and in less than an hour the whole book fire, and in less than an hour the whole house and contents were in ashes. The occupants of the building, Mr. Greer, his wife, and two children, a babe ten months old and a boy of four years were all in bed and asleen at the time of the explosion. They were carried with the flying debris, bed and all, out into a two-acre lot which surrounded the building. Mr. Greer's hair and mustache were burned. GENERAL RECOMMENDATIONS.

The report devotes considerable space to the consideration of the judicial system of the country, and says that the United States courts as now organized cannot possibly transact the business before them with the promptness that justice requires. It endorses the general features of the Davis bill for the establishment of a court of appeals, or intermediate court, as best adapted for the purpose, but suggests a plan based on that bill, the main features of which were incorporated in the presidential message.

The Attorney General repeats the recommental consideration of the purpose, but suggests a plan based on that bill, the main features of which were incorporated in the presidential message.

Greer's hair and mustache were burned, and his back was severely injured. Mrs. Greer was burned about the head and hands and her hair was partly burned off. The baby miraculously escaped injury. The four-year-old boy was badly burned about the body. The report was heard for miles, arousing the neighbors, who quickly came to the relief of the Greer family and conveyed them to a place of safety.

He adopts the views of his predecessor on the subject of criminal procedure and says that it is of the highest importance that the pleadings in criminal cases be simplied, a uniform system of challenges provided and the whole proceedings shorn of the technical objections.

Among the recommendations are the following: That each justice of the Supreme Court be provided with a stenographic secretary or law clerk; that the tees of marshals in Montana, Idaho and Wyoming be doubled; that outgoing marshals be required to turn over to their successors at the time of their qualification all unfinished business of every kind: that the salar

The report closes with a brief statement of the Union Pacific railway litigation, and says that a motion will be filed by the government in the Supreme Court in a few days to advance the appeals on the docket, so as to have a speedy determination of them.
